2. Have you ever ate a food that might kill you? That is what thousands of Koreans have done every year when they sit down to delicious meal of fugu fish. In English, fugu is known like puffer fish. There are above 120 species of puffers in the world's oceans. They are relative small, and they have spikes who pop up when they sense danger. Through this spikes the puffers can inject a deadly venom into their attackers, and it is this venom who make the fugu such a potentially dangerous fish.
